Masquerade Ends

After two years, the masquerade of a U.S. Central Intelligence Agency operative was ended due to a $2 million damage suit brought by survivors of victims of the 1960 Cannelton airliner crash. Suit against airline, airplane manufacturer and engine manufacturer is in Federal District Court at Chicago.

Among plaintiffs are relatives of Chiyoki Keda, a member of the secret CIA. At time of crash, Keda was identified as "Japanese policeman."
